Weaknesses

- Does not inspect before licensing.
- Routine inspections are required only once every 10 years.
- Check of juvenile records are not explicitly included in background checks.
- Providers are required to have 14 hours of initial training and are not required to have initial training on six of the eight specific areas.
- Providers are only required to have 16 hours of annual training, six of which are on CPR and first aid.
- Providers are not required to communicate with parents about the care of their children or have contracts with the parents.

Strengths

- Providers caring for even one unrelated child for pay are required to be licensed.
- Both routine inspections/visits and those conducted when there is a complaint are unannounced.
- Licensed FCC providers and their substitutes and assistants are required to have background checks. In addition, exempt providers receiving subsidies are required to have background checks.
- Background checks are based on fingerprints, includes checks of criminal records, child abuse registries and sex offender registries.
- Providers are required to have specific toys and materials for motor development, language and literacy, art, math, science and dramatic play. Books are specifically required.
- Providers are required to offer ALL eight learning activities and literacy opportunities.
- Providers must follow ALL 10 health requirements.
- Regulations address ALL 10 safety requirements.

Recommendations

- Inspect homes before being licensed and at least annually.
- Use juvenile records to conduct background checks.
- Increase the number of hours of initial training required to 40 and ensure providers have training in child development, child abuse prevention, learning activities, health and safety, child guidance, and business practices.
- Increase the required annual training to at least 24 hours.
- Require providers to communicate with parents about the care of their child and have written contracts with parents.

Note

Michigan's score could have been 98 (70%), but they received zero because they do not inspect providers before they are licensed and caring for children.
